CONGRESS SEEMS TO AVERT A TRADE WAR

Tariff Rates May Be Deferred Until New Agreements Are Made.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Consideration was given by the tariff committee today to the plan to supplement the tariff bill with a special congressional amendment to prevent trade wars with foreign countries.

Guard Against Penalties.
Apprehension that the Democratic tariff bill might lead foreign nations to impose tariff penalties against the United States as soon as the new law goes into effect caused administration and senate leaders to plan the introduction of a joint resolution in congress making specific provision for the continuation of existing relations with all countries until president Wilson has time to negotiate new trade agreements.

The seriousness of the situation that will confront the administration was impressed upon chairman Simmons, of the senate finance committee, by state department officials. It was pointed out that the trade relations established by president Taft's proclamations under the Payne-Aldrich law would terminate as soon as the new law became effective and that the United States would face the possibility of having higher tariff rates applied against its exports by many countries. While the tariff law would give the president authority to negotiate new trade treaties, it would authorize him to apply special penalty rates against any country discriminating against the United States.

To Prevent Trade Wars.
To prevent the possibility of trade wars, the state department is now drafting a joint resolution, which will provide that existing relations shall continue for four months. This will not keep in effect the tariff rates on the Payne-Aldrich law, but will allow for foreign countries that the new penalty provision of the Underwood-Simmons bill will not be applied to them until a reasonable time has been allowed the president and the state department to negotiate new trade treaties. Practically all nations having any foreign commerce will be asked to enter into such pacts.

Bill to Be Separate Act.
At the white house and later at the state department, senator Simmons pointed out to administration officials that it would be impossible to insert the provision desired as an amendment to the tariff bill because the introduction of any new matter is precluded while the bill is in conference. The bill will be put through congress as a separate act, supplementary to the tariff law.

Senate amendments to the tariff bill would authorize the president to assess extra duties on goods of the United States, such as silk, lace, jewelry, sugar and many other items coming from countries not treating the United States as a "favored nation." While the joint resolution could not prevent other countries from imposing higher tariffs from the United States, it is said it will induce them to withhold such action, temporarily at least.

Increase Income Tax Rate.
The senate conferees won their fight for a heavier tax on big incomes, when the house members of the conference committee agreed to accept the senate amendment increasing the tax rate to a maximum of 7 percent on incomes of more than $500,000.

With prospects for extended discussion of the administration currency bill the senate banking committee today continued to hear Samuel Untermyer, of New York, discuss the measure.

Will Not Rush Money Bill.
An attempt to hurry along consideration of the currency bill failed. Senator Shafroth, of Colorado, tried to secure an agreement to close the hearings on Saturday, October 4. Senators Reed, of Missouri, and Brewster, of Kansas, and Weeks, of Massachusetts, declared against any attempt to limit consideration of the bill. "I think other members of the committee are beginning to see," senator Weeks said, "that this bill will take up most of the fall and I purpose staying in the committee soon the resolution I introduced in the senate to allow the bill to go over to the regular session next winter."

Necessity for Amendment.
Senator Reed said that hearings were being held on the bill which showed the necessity for amendment and that he was in favor of hearing everyone who had any important suggestions to offer. Senator Brewster insisted that the small country banker should be heard, and senator Weeks said that he had requests from six Massachusetts bankers who wished to appear.

A Tale of Two Women--

An Autumn Corset Story

ONCE upon a time there was a woman who bought for herself—new gowns, silken stockings, brand new shoes and gloves, and a hat that was the envy of every one who saw it—and thought herself ready for Autumn.
And there was another woman who bought all these things, too—but first of all she was fitted in a beautiful new corset.
And when Sunday came both donned their finery—
But you can guess what happened. Of course, the woman who wore her new clothes over an old corset lost absolutely the well-gowned effect she was striving after.
The moral is not hard to guess either. But most important of all is the Postscript.

COLORADO STRIKE PROVES SERIOUS

Country in Las Animas county is by no means complete. Operations are going one with reduced forces of men. The officials of operating coal companies believe that those remaining at work will not lay down their tools.

The strike has little effect on mine operators in Boulder county. It is estimated that approximately 1200 men are employed in this county. The mines at Louisville were picketed this morning by union men.

Fremont County Mines Idle.
With the exception of two mines, the Royal Gorge and the Nonce No. 5, both employing a small number of men, the mines in Fremont county are idle. Representatives of the mine workers indicated that 1100 men were out.

May Close Steel Plant.
There is possibility that the Minnesota steel plant of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company will be compelled to shut down in a week or two if the coal mine strike becomes serious, according to Pueblo reports. Since strike talk began, the forces has been reduced.

Fuel Supply Is Short.
Late reports from Colorado Springs today indicate that the strike situation there is more serious than at first supposed and that it may also lead to the partial paralysis at least of mining operations in the Cripple Creek district which secures most of its fuel from that point.

An investigation shows that the Colorado Springs and Interurban Railway company, operating the street car lines of the region, has only coal enough on hand to run its plant for 10 days at half service. Other public utilities companies are also said to be short of fuel and some of the mine and smelters, such as the Golden Cycle mill at Colorado City, have but a four days' supply of fuel.

The operators are having more trouble in securing strike breakers than was anticipated, it is said. It has developed that the men secured at Pueblo yesterday refused to work when they were interviewed by local organizers upon their arrival at Pike View.

Later Escarez and Zepeda were arrested by patrolmen Claude Smith and Valencia, and lodged in the city jail. Tuesday morning a complaint charging them with burglary was filed in the court of justice of the peace James J. Murray. The officers claim that the two men entered Salgado's room after he went to sleep and took his coat and vest. Both were recovered after the arrest of the men.

AMERICAN UNIFORM OFFENCE IN JUAREZ

Discharged Soldier Arrested But Is Later Paroled in Custody of the American Consul.

James J. Kenney, of Waterbury, Conn., and J. E. Wickley, of Alamogordo, N. M., were detained in the office of Col. Juan N. Vasquez, in Juarez, for three hours Tuesday morning. Kenney was paroled in the custody of American consul Thomas D. Edwards shortly after noon, and Wickley was told that he could go. Kenney wore the uniform of a sergeant of troop K, of the Fifth cavalry, having been discharged from that regiment at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., on September 22. He had his discharge papers and a ticket to New York, issued to him as a discharged soldier. It was his uniform that caused his detention. Wickley, who accompanied him, was on his way home to Alamogordo, after having been employed as a carpenter at Fort Huachuca for several months. Neither man carried arms.

They had gone to Juarez on a street car at 9 o'clock and said that no United States soldier boarded the car on the American side of the Stanton street bridge to tell them to get off. They were not molested by the Mexican immigration or customs officers, and alighted from the car at the corner of Lerdo avenue and Comercio street, without being questioned. While in a store at the corner of these streets, a captain of the federal army told them to accompany him.

They went to the office of Col. Vasquez. The latter explained that Mexican soldiers in uniform were arrested when they went to the American side, so he would have to hold Kenney until he could learn what Fort Bliss would do in the future. He allowed the ex-sergeant to go to the home of consul Edwards, trusting to the latter to communicate with Fort Bliss and inform him what the American army officers had to say. He declared that Wickley was not detained and could go at will, but the latter said that once when he poked his head out the door a guard told him to get back into the office and emphasized his remark. Wickley also went to the consulate, where he remained, pending communication with Fort Bliss.

PANHANDLE WOMEN TO HELP PURE FOOD CAMPAIGN
Austin, Tex., Sept. 22.—T. H. Johnson, assistant chemist of the pure food department, has returned from an extended tour of the Panhandle section of the state where he has been cooperating with the civic societies with a view of improving pure food conditions. Mr. Johnson said he found the women at the head of these organizations more than willing to take hold of the work, with the result that a campaign has been inaugurated in over a dozen Panhandle towns which will materially improve conditions.
